We use AACU Standards
American Association of Colleges & Universities

Fellows develop mastery of a range of abilities and capacities empowering and allowing them to maneuver in and shape a world in flux. Our expertise is based on 40+ years of university instruction.

We Incorporate University Experiences While Guiding Fellows to:
• Communicate in diverse settings\groups, via written, oral, visual means;
• Understand\employ quantitative\qualitative analysis to describe\solve problems;
• Interpret, evaluate, and use information discerningly, from a variety of sources;
• Integrate knowledge of various types and understanding of complex systems;
• Resolve difficult issues creatively by employing multiple systems and tools;
• Derive meaning from experience and gather information from observation;
• Develop and demonstrate intellectual agility and change management;
• Transform information into knowledge and knowledge into judgment & action;
• Work well in diverse teams and build consensus.
Our Approach to Writing

Protect, Promote & Advocate for Communities

- People of ethnic cultures come from oral traditions whereby stories are handed down between generations.

- However, every time a story is told it gets changed and with each change a value of the origin is often lost, reinterpreted, convoluted, diluted and made weaker.

- Next generations often lose story legacy guideposts.

- Our approach to writing is to teach the habits, processes practices and ideas of storytelling, so Fellows write from experiential legacies that can be looked up and sourced in original forms and shared for generations to come.
Our Approach to Publishing

Move from Oral Traditions to Journals for History

• Fellows learn to engage and interview experts to accumulate a body of ideas, experiences, opinions and solutions to issues forming fundamental beliefs/values.

• Fellows interview and write about family, culture, identity and represent community as ambassadorial leaders.

• Fellows enjoy close-knit mutual support and an interclass exchange of ideas as they develop, research & write a thesis, then create a digital presentation and video story.

• There is a dual act of courage in writing about what we experience: 1) We let people see who we are and what we really think; 2) We invite people to know more.
Online Meetings & Presentations

Verbal Communications Literacy

Communications literacy via continual conversations discussing issues & solutions:

• Critical thinking for script research & writing;
• Having voice & learning interview techniques;
• Sharing ideas & listening to feedback;
• Each participant’s media production is located on their ACCESS alumni permanent web page.
• Alumni are encouraged to share experiential learning as they grow into global citizens.
TV Production & Showcase

In Front of a Camera, Individuals Self-Correct

• When people see and hear themselves in front of the camera, a change happens within, they decide how they want to be viewed.

• Literacy comes with continual practice in conversation, discussing issues and solutions.

• Fellows research, develop and present video scripts - from their findings on health disparities to sanctuary cities around the world. They learn use media to present issues, lessons and have important and informative discussions.
Graduation Conference Event
Produced by Fellows who Present their Findings

• As ambassadors & emerging global citizens Fellows interpret the world for communities.
• As multi-cultural people, Fellows share local to global strategies to meet community needs.
• Fellows present to show who they are and why their contributions are important to the world.
• Fellows receive a web page hosting their work.
• Fellows receive a stipend, laptop & certificate.
